Hard and Soft Ball Tournaments

Arrangements are proceeding apace for the carrying out of the annual Wainwright Sports Day on July 1st, and the committees involved are sparing no effort to surpass the successful results of preceding years.

It is planned that, as in former years, the day's doings will start off with a big calisthenic parade, in which all are appealed to take part, and in which prizes will be offered to those judged best in various classes, such as decorated floats, decorated cars, comics, etc. A nice money prize is being offered also to the country school which will have the largest number of pupils in the parade.

In the baseball section, two tournaments have been arranged for (senior and local intermediate teams) and the first four entries in each class will threaten it out for the big money prizes. A ladies' softball engagement will also, no doubt, provide many thrills to lovers of this sport, as well as the contest for the home-chose artists.

A novelty will be interjected this year in the form of platform contests for the youngsters in amateur offerings—singing, dancing, acting, etc.—for prizes, and races for the children are also planned.

There are to be midway attractions, too, and of course the band will play selections throughout the day, as well as head the big parade in the morning.

As a special attraction in the evening, the Elite theatre will bring in the famous George Arliss comedy drama "The Last Gentleman" as well as a number of other reels of high-class talkies, and two shows will be given starting at 7 p.m.

This will be followed by the usual big dance for which a full orchestra is being engaged, and where the usual big crowd will dance to their heart's content till the early hours.

For those using their cars, parking space on the fair grounds is being provided, and admission to the grounds will be free for the vehicles and children all day.

Arrange to take the day off, and bring in all the kiddies for the big day—July 1st—so that they can enjoy their free flags, free treats, and all the other amusements of Wainwright's Dominion Day Celebration.

Anniversary Service at Wainwright United Ch.

Large and appreciative audiences heard the Rev. Dr. A. S. Tuttle, of Edmonton, at the anniversary services at the United Church on Sunday last. It was the tenth anniversary of the United Church of Canada. In the morning he spoke on "He leadeth me in paths that come out of peace," and at the evening worship his subject was "The things to which the Church must put her hand in the next ten years."

The messages were thoughtful, challenging and inspiring, and the junior and senior choirs rendered special music at both services which added to the solemn atmosphere of the gathering.

On Monday evening, the W.A. of the church served the usual anniversary dinner, which was followed by a concert in the church at which Dr. Tuttle delivered a very interesting lecture, to a large and enthusiastic audience.

Wainwright Artists At Czar Chautauqua

On Thursday evening last, a number of our local instrumental and vocal artists journeyed over to Czar to supply the musical portion of a home-talent Chautauqua there.

The concert presented was of high merit, judging from the hearty and spontaneous applause which was accorded each number.

At the close of the evening, the visitors were entertained to a delicious lunch provided by the Czar ladies before leaving for their trip home to Wainwright.

Will Inoculate Pupils During Ann. Holiday

The regular meeting of the Public School Board was held June 4th, when those present were Mrs. H. L. Cunnison, and Messrs. Hannah, Carrell and Sawers, with the secretary.

The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted as read.

Principal Thomson reported a total attendance for May of 271 pupils and on motion his report was accepted and filed.

A communication was read from the three doctors in town regarding the vaccination and inoculation of the pupils against smallpox and diphtheria, and on motion, it was decided that arrangements be made to have this work done during the summer vacation of the schools.

It was resolved that the whole of the present teaching staff be re-engaged for next term, and the secretary was instructed to prepare the necessary contracts for this purpose.

The Finance committee reported bills and accounts amounting to $1078.83, and these were passed for payment and cheques ordered drawn for the several amounts.

This being all the business, the Board adjourned.

Mrs. T. Moffatt Dies Following Operation

The sympathies of her many friends are extended to Mrs. W. E. Wauburn upon the passing away of her mother, Mrs. Thomas Moffatt, at her home at Owen Sound, Ontario, last week. She was 82 years of age.

Mrs. Wauburn left for the East immediately upon receipt of the news of her mother's illness early last week, but unfortunately, the aged lady, who was operated upon in the hope of prolonging life, had passed on before her daughter arrived there. Further particulars will appear next week.

As a special attraction in the evening, the Elite theatre will bring in the famous George Arliss comedy drama "The Last Gentleman" as well as a number of other reels of high-class talkies, and two shows will be given starting at 7 p.m.

Since the last meeting of Council, practically all of the lanes have been cleaned up by the scavenger, effecting great improvement. In this connection we wish to point out that, quite a number of the ratepayers are contravening the bylaws by setting fire to rubbish in the lane at the rear of their property. This is entirely contrary to the provincial fire protection laws, and might easily be the cause of a very bad fire in town; especially on windy days. As the town bylaws call for burnable rubbish to be destroyed in an incinerator, we would suggest that the police enforce the bylaw where it is flagrantly violated.

A report from the provincial sanitary inspector, who recently accompanied our Medical Health Officer, Dr. Wallace, on a tour of inspection of the dairies which supply milk for consumption within the town.

Alexander's Dairy
Much improvement was noted at this dairy since my last visit to the town. I found the barns and yards in good order and also improvements made to the milk house. The more important matters of technique were discussed with Mr. Alexander and I stressed the importance of cooling milk, scalding equipment and providing drying racks for bottles, etc. Mr. Alexander asked permission to convert a building from a storehouse into a separator room. Permission was granted on condition that the building be used for the separating of milk only, and that the interior be painted and cleaned.

Wheaton's Dairy
This dairy commenced operation some time during the past year after some time of business for some time. I found conditions clean and in good order. Advice was given in respect to the cooling of the milk, and also in regard to bottle racks. Other conditions appeared to be satisfactory.

Kinghorn's Dairy
Conditions in the barn and milk house were found clean and in good order. Matters pertaining to the cooling of milk and provision of cooling tanks were discussed and advice given re bottle racks.

McCrystal's Dairy
The dairy barn is small for the number of cows kept, and this was pointed out to the proprietor. Improvements are also to be made in the milkhouse, all of which were mentioned to Mr. McCrystal. Methods of cooling were somewhat inadequate. Therefore, I advised more up-to-date cooling tanks. Bottle racks were also advocated.

Dr. Wallace, M.H.O., was present during my inspection of the dairies, and was advising as to the requirements of the provincial fire protection laws, and might easily be the cause of a very bad fire in town; especially on windy days. The Committee on Fire, Light, and Utilities submitted the following report, viz:

On Saturday, June 1st, we called out the fire brigade, and tested the water line, pumps, hydrants, and 1,000 feet of hose. We found that at the end of the line on Eighth avenue and Main street, we could put water on the roof of the convent with 500 feet of hose. A test was made of another 500 feet of hose at Sixth and Main and found the ground. The hose was found all in good condition.

During the test it was found that all hydrants could not be tested owing to a leak in the main line. The work of repairing this leak has been started, but there is still frost in the ground. We would request that the work done so far be approved, and recommend that the necessary work on the main line be carried out.

On motion by Councillor Lisimore the report of the Fire, Light and Utilities Committee was accepted and incorporated in the proceedings of the meeting.

The wonderful settings of the musical romance "Thine is my Heart," which is a production of British International Pictures from the ever-popular "Blossom-time," gives great scope to Richard Tauber, the most famous tenor in the world today.

The leading role is taken by this artist, and in the love story portrayed by him, the high artistic merit of his wonderful vocal powers is well sustained in such sublimely songs as "Hark, Hark the Lark," "Red Roses," "Impatience," and "Faith in Spring," all of which offerings are woven into the pictured story of the great love of Franz Schubert possibly the greatest of all musical geniuses.

Tauber plays the Schubert character to perfection, and is presented as a soloist who sacrifices his own great love and happiness in order that the girl of his choice may marry her nobleman officer-sweetheart.

This has been the family home ever since. When the British America division was opened here in 1909, Mr. Wilson was appointed the first grain buyer for the company, holding the position for 1909 and 1910. From the latter year until 1914 he was at Cummings in charge of a general store and for two years of the time acted as secretary of the old L.L.D. being appointed secretary-treasurer of the municipal district of Grizzly Bear on its organization in 1914, filling the position until the time of his death. He was born on August 4th, 1868. Mr. Wilson was a man of outstanding character and integrity and a municipal officer of rare ability. His death is a sad loss to the municipality which he served so faithfully and well, as well as to the friends and neighbors of many years standing by whom he will be greatly missed. The family have the deepest sympathy of all in their sore bereavement.

The funeral was held on Saturday held at the United Church, conducted by Rev. H. A. Boyd. It was largely attended by many old friends and sympathizers with the family. Interment was made in the Vermilion cemetery. The pallbearers were all past or present members of the Grizzly Bear council and comprised: Reeve G. S. Shaw, C. C. Symes, Joe W. Young, D. Gardner, Frank Naah and John McNair.

Floral offerings were received from the following: The Family, Wreath; Grandchildren; Mr. and Mrs. Scott and Family; First Presbyterian Church Choir; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wright and Family; The Old Times; of Cummings; the Wainwright Association of Secretary-treasurers; Grizzly Bear Mun. Council; Wainwright Community; Carlson Family; Miss Pavey; Earle and George; Mrs. M. E. Davies; Stephens Bros. Limited and Staff; Mr. and Mrs. Wallington; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. White; Tom and Lill—Vermilion Standard.

The high school girls' softball team is planning to play at the Edgemoor sports this afternoon. Here's wishing them luck in their tourney.

Mr. Walter Menz is speaking to night in the L.O.O.F. hall on the subject "What is wrong with Social Credit?"

Attention is called to the dance which the "Lone Scouts" of the Sydenham district are planning for Friday evening next in the school-house.

A series of ten gospel meetings is being arranged by Pastor Bennett. These will continue from June 18 to June 27 and will commence at 7:45 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Clark are opening their home tomorrow (Thursday) evening from 8:30 till 10:30 p.m. so that all who wish may have an opportunity of expressing a "bon voyage" to Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Horn who are leaving shortly for their future home in B.C.

CANDIDATES

are mentioned. Names of eminent men who might make good Presidential candidates for the Republicans in 1936 pop up in the news almost every day. One of the latest suggestions is for the party to draft Justice Owen J. Roberts of Pennsylvania from the Supreme Court of the United States. This would be following the precedent set in 1916, when Charles E. Hughes was taken from that bench to run against Woodrow Wilson—and nearly won the election.

Justice Roberts isn't saying anything. I think it doubtful that he will be the party's leader next year. Not that he isn't a good man, for he is. He would be a good President, but that doesn't mean he would be a good candidate.

Some Nebraskans are "prompting" J. R. McCarr, Comptroller-General of the United States, and the only man who can tell the President and Cabinet where to head in. Others are talking about a coalition between Republicans and conservative Democrats and talking of Lewis A. Douglas of Arizona, former Director of the Budget, and Alfred E. Smith, as possible heads of a Fusion ticket. Probably most of the men I have named will be a Presidential candidate, but the fact that politicians everywhere are talking about candidates indicates a decided warming up in the interest in the 1936 elections.

POSTMARKS . . . and collectors

The appointment of Oscar Phillips as postmaster at Santa Claus, Indiana, suggests the interest which stamp collectors and other take in postmarks. Every year tens of thousands of persons send Christmas packages and cards on to the Santa Claus postoffice to be remailed so they will bear that appropriate address. One of my stamp collector friends prizes the "covers" of letters which he received from the Byrd Polar expeditions—one from the North Pole and one from the South Pole—above everything in his collection. I know one man who is trying to make a complete collection of postmarks, to include every post office in the United States. Counting the Douglas of Arizona, former Director of the Budget, and Alfred E. Smith, will have cost him in postage alone more than $3,000 to make his collection, but believes that when it is complete, it will be worth several times that money. At any rate, it is a harmless hobby.

FABRIC . . . a magic cloth

A new fabric which seems to have revolutionary possibilities has been developed by a New England inventor. As described by one technical observer, it utilizes not only cotton but any other vegetable or animal fiber, and is produced by a process which has something of the technique of paper making and some methods used in rubber goods manufacture. It hasn't any name as yet, but it can be made thin enough for a silk handkerchief or sturdy enough for factory belting. It is described as lending itself to a wider range of colors than any existing fabric and as having the power of absorbing sound when used as draperies.

That sounds like magic; but it is merely another example of the new things which industry stands ready to provide when the return of financial stability makes it prudent to invest money in their production and distribution. The research workers in the laboratories are not standing still, but are working steadily on new marvels, many of which we as yet have no inkling of, but which may be the common-places of ten years from now.

DIAMOND . . . the largest

The largest diamond ever discovered is coming to the United States. A year ago the world was amazed by the news from the South African diamond fields that a flawless diamond as big as a hen's egg had been found by a poor farmer named Jonkers. The fortunate finder sold it for something like $100,000 to one of the big diamond companies, which has been holding it for the market until somebody was ready to pay its real value.

It is reported that the American purchaser paid $750,000 for this stone, which is still uncut. Probably when it is properly cut and polished it will be worth a lot more than a million.

What interests me, however, is that there is still money in such huge sums ready for investment in diamonds. The diamond market is looking up. Many who formerly hoarded gold are now putting their money into diamonds, as the safest portable investment, and one which can be turned quickly into cash at any time, besides holding the reasonable certainty of becoming worth more as the purchasing value of the dollar goes down.

CRASH . . . stunter's fault

The biggest airplane ever built, the "Maxim Gorky," crashed over Moscow the other day, killing every one of its 42 passengers and crew. It was no fault of the big plane, however, it was a collision with a small plane which was doing stunts too near it.

Nobody knows yet the safe size limit of airplanes, but in general, aviation engineers tell me, the bigger they are the safer they are, if they are properly constructed. Russians are building bigger and better airplanes than anybody else, long before the Great War.

If you want to get a peep into the future of aviation, get hold of H. G. Wells' book "The First War in the Air," published thirty years or so ago, and Rudyard Kipling's "With the Night Mail," of about the same date.

Those two writers are authentic prophets and what they forecast so long ago is beginning to come true.

The data included in our daily diet, such as butter, margarine, lard and the vegetable fats, provide twice as much fuel as equal weights of any pure starch or sugar, and a useful fabricant to our foods, and in the case of butter, the important vitamins. Moderate amount of fried foods which make penetration of the digestive juices difficult.

When jobs for women—jobs that might turn into careers—were plentiful, there was no need for a variety of hobbies to fill in spare hours for bored city housewives. They simply took jobs. Amongst to most of us, however, the hobby show just closed in New York, that points dozens of ways to avoid boredom—from the most useful to the most trivial and useless ways of using time.

Recent tests have shown that small oranges give considerably more juice per crate than large oranges, and that machine squeezing extracts far more juice than squeezing by hand.

Before you get that next permanent, give your hair and scalp some healthy treatments for several days before hand. Your hair will take a better wave. And examine the pads—see that they haven't been scorched by previous use. And see, too, that the pads have the same name as the wave you are supposed to be getting. And after the wave, don't tightly massage the scalp and don't fall to use oil treatments. None of these will injure the wave. All will benefit the hair.

You don't have to avoid prints because you may be over size forty. Simply play safe and choose small horizontal stripes in preference for the longitudinal.

Most doctors agree these days that meat should be included in the diet of two-year-olds every day. A void fried meats, of course, but broiled, roasted or stewed meats add essential elements for the growing child.

Rambling Round New York

Uniforms and more uniforms! The fanciest yet is in Rainbow Room in Radio City. Purple knee breeches, white silk stockings, gold buckled pumps and a gold chain. Whoops! Golly!

That blonde in the hotel lobby. She watched me closely as I read, waiting a friend. She walked to the north exit. My friend and I went out the south a few seconds later. And there she was outside. She had passed the south exit and gone beyond. A man inside the taxi cab opened the door and she stepped in. I wonder if she thought I might be a detective?

There seems to be no end of amateurs that bring their appearances before the microphone in New York. They come by automobile, by train, by anything they can. And if no other means can be found they hitchhike, bringing with them the most curious assemblage of gadgets that you can possibly imagine.

There's always a small crowd staring at "Prometheus Unbound"—that glittering golden gadget of a statue in the sunken garden of Rockefeller Center that has so rightly earned the nickname of "The Man on the Flying Trapeze."

When New York movie houses arrange the guard of ushers in military manoeuvres, it always strikes me as just a bit of show business. But when I found returned from Florida reporting the change in bell-boys in an expensive hotel as a regular double-quick manoeuvre all through the lobby, it made me a little more than slightly ill.

Curiosities are New York visitors of spring. They're likely to arrive with nothing but sports outfits in high colors and light weights, and shiver their way about town. The autograph hunters are expert at spotting them from a distance—and how they love it!

Over to Ninth Avenue and 42nd Street—just two blocks long—At the Times Square, the push carts cater to alert purchasers at prices almost unbelievably low.

Stores on Ninth Avenue feature the strangest concoctions. Great boxes of sage and odd spices for the Latin and Greek trade. Sacks of roasted coffee beans that look oily and jet black. And a variety of foods still sold in bulk—in the manner of 1910.

Four long blocks of push carts. Thousands of tomatoes, Strawberries, Asparagus. All the common fruits and vegetables in season. There is zucchini—the Italian squash. It is delicious either French fried or baked. But not in avocado in the whole four blocks. Too expensive or unfamiliar for the tenement trade.

The diamond market in lower New York is a strange sight. Men on the curb talking to each other—trading stones and haggling. Of course the really important diamonds are sold indoors.

To the Savoy-Plaza last week to hear Dwight Dillard, his monologue and his piano—subtly bawdy and amusing. Arriving late, we stayed until closing time. Simple, when properly done, and delicious, are shirred eggs. Heat a small earthenware dish just enough to melt butter. Put in the eggs and cook so slowly that the whites take a creamy texture before the yolks begin to cook. Salt and pepper some melted butter and pour over the eggs when done.

Here's one of the best recipes for hot chocolate. A square or unsweetened chocolate, enough sugar and put a bit of vanilla bean into a saucepan with half a glass of water. Stir vigorously as you boil it into a thick paste. Add a cup of milk and boil for three minutes, stirring and finally stir in yolk of a fresh egg.

A novel way of poaching eggs is to use about a tablespoon full of butter in a small frying pan instead of water. Heat until the butter melts, drop in the eggs, take off the fire and cover. After standing about five minutes, if they are not quite set, put them back on the fire for a few seconds and serve.

DOCTORS DISAGREE

The fact that doctors disagree is nothing new, nevertheless their differences of opinion continue to be a source of amusement or surprise to many. And yet, why should they not disagree? People outside of the medical profession do not invariably agree on all subjects. Such disagreement means that there is no absolute proof in support of either argument.

Doctors disagree about some things, but they agree about many more. You will find them unanimous with regard to the value of vaccination against smallpox and of immunization against diphtheria, also as to the need for early diagnosis of tuberculosis and cancer. They agree upon these and many other subjects, because the scientific evidence is so overwhelming that it is accepted by all with the exception of that irreducible minimum which is not open to conviction.

There are no secrets in medicine. Every discovery is given out freely so that it may be put to use for the general good of mankind and not for the personal gain of the discoverer. In that sense, all medical knowledge is open to every medical practitioner.

The diagnosis and treatment of disease are not based upon a simple formula. Calling upon his knowledge of medical science and his own personal experience, the physician reaches a conclusion that is based upon a consideration of all the facts as they are revealed to him through his examination of the patient and the study of the condition.

It is obvious that the opinion expressed by a physician is a personal one. For the simple reason that, as human beings, members of the medical profession vary as do other human beings in their experience and their skill. It is not to be wondered at that, in the very complicated fields of diagnosis and treatment, there are differences of opinion.

These differences are not so great as they may frequently appear to be. It is quite possible that both opinions are right because there is often more than one way of successfully treating a disease, and it is a question of personal judgment as to which of several is the best method to use in any particular case. No medical practitioner claims to be infallible. Years of training supply the foundation upon which each one builds. Continuous study keeps the physician in touch with the newer knowledge, and experience gives to him what he cannot obtain in any other way. Medicine is a science and an art, but it is, above all else, a service to mankind.

SOME QUEER LAWS

THAT STILL ARE LAWS

In Los Angeles, car conductors are forbidden to shoot pack rabbits from the car platform.

Massachusetts forbids traveling at all on Sundays except for charity or necessity.

In Pennsylvania cursing is punishable by a fine of 97 cents per word.

In Virginia railroad train running after dark must be preceded by a man, walking or on horseback, carrying a red lantern.

In South Carolina every citizen going to church on Sunday must carry a gun.

Kansas limits the length of shirt tails.

Anyway the Kansas law is the best of the lot.

The little round yoke is a sweet frame for a sweet little face. The tab which comes from the skirt buttons up over the yoke and conceals the opening in the front of the neck which is made to slip the head through. The nice flare to the skirt makes ripples, especially when made on a bias cut, and allows plenty of freedom for skipping and running. The puff sleeves are gathered into the sleeveband which has the same sort of closing as the front tab.

A cross-barred gingham in blue and white would look well in this design, combined with white for the upper part.

BARLEY FOR GROWING PIGS

Feed supplies for hog production are scarce in a large part of the West this year. The supply of oats is limited, and the average quality for feeding purposes is low. Oats has long been recognized as a superior feed for fattening, but has not been used extensively in the ration for growing hogs. The reason for this is probably due to a fear that barley fed at this time has a tendency to make the pig too short, so qualify for the bacon grades. Feeding tests have been conducted at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Brandon, to determine the effect of heavy barley feeding on the resulting market hog, and to determine the economy of such a practice.

During the summer of 1935, eighty pigs were developed from an average weight of forty pounds to finished weight on a basic meal ration of seventy per cent barley and thirty per cent oats. Seven groups of ten pigs each were fed tankage in addition to the meal ration in amounts varying from one to ten per cent. One group was fed the meal ration of barley and oats without the tankage supplement. The test was conducted during the summer months, and the pigs were fed in small fenced lots without pasture. The average gain made by the eighty pigs was slightly more than a pound and a quarter daily for the whole feeding period. The rate of gain varied with the different groups in accordance with the amount of tankage fed. There were no ill effects during the growing period resulting from heavy barley feeding, and over seventy-five per cent of the hogs graded "bacon" or "select" when marketed.

A further feeding test was conducted during the winter of 1935-36 to compare rapidly and economy of gain with light and heavy barley feeding. This test was continued from the time the average weight of the pigs was less than forty pounds until they were up to market weight. The ration including two parts barley and one part of oats produced fourteen per cent more rapid gains with seven per cent less feed than when two-thirds of oats and one-third of barley were used.

With both rations six per cent of tankage and an allowance of three pounds of milk per pig daily were fed. There was no difference in the effect of the two rations on the type of the resulting market hog. Insufficient evidence is available to indicate the maximum amount of barley that is safe to include in the ration for growing pigs. The amounts indicated above have given satisfactory results in tests so far conducted.

From the standpoint of feed produced per acre, barley excels oats. The average yield of barley in Canada during the past twelve years was 24 bushels per acre and the average yield of oats for the same period was 30 bushels. The yield of digestible nutrients per acre was 924 pounds for barley, and 734 pounds for oats. The amount of feed in oats reduces its value as hog feed. This is particularly true when the quality of feed oats is low.

SOME LEAF DISEASES OF

WHEAT AND BARLEY

The leaves of wheat and barley plants are subject to a large number of distinct diseases which often seriously reduce the value of the crop. The diseases of barley, Dominion Experimental Farms Branch, draws attention to these diseases as follows:

"ACIDOSIS"

Oh, yes, "acidosis"! I had almost forgotten it. More people, I will venture to say, have entered doctors' offices for treatment for "acidosis" than for any other seldom encountered thing; because there are very few cases of real acidosis.

People somehow get to imagining that acid gets to circulating through every channel of their blood vessels and they beseege the poor doctor to cure "acidosis". Let us hope that the doctor does not become bewildered for he is but human—and shove them into the open arms of the food faddist, of which there are hundreds of thousands.

proper control used if serious outbreaks occur.

Spot Blotch on wheat and barley is the result of an infection of the plant by a fungus. Oblong, dark brown spots, surrounded by a yellow halo, are characteristic of the disease. The fungus may cause a root-rot or seed discoloration. The rooting of infected seed results in seedling blight. This disease is very prevalent.

Net Blotch is found chiefly on barley. Plant symptoms of the disease resemble those of spot blotch, but if the spots are examined closely a network of darker lines may be seen in the darkened areas.

Leaf Stripe is confined to barley. The disease is characterized by narrow plant stripes or in the soil, but if the spots are examined closely a network of darker lines may be seen in the darkened areas.

As these diseases have a tendency to reduce the yield of the crop, it is essential to prevent rapid spread of these diseases.

TOUR

A car tune-up before the vacation trip begins will do more than any other one thing to make the holiday a success, according to N. H. Daniel, general service manager of General Motors Products of Canada, Limited.

The car that seems to work fairly well in day-to-day driving, says Mr. Daniel in a timely statement, may not be just one hundred per cent for work at full power over long periods. Both safety and pleasure being at stake, it is advisable to check carefully before starting out on a vacation trip. The chief items in the safety category, and in most cases simple adjustments will suffice. Good tires are essential, too, and all lights should have good bulbs, with headlight beams properly adjusted. A motor tune-up is one of the best precautionary measures. Battery and generator, lubricants, radiator, and fan belt are among the other items which should be given attention. And it will add a lot to the vacationist's happiness if he has the body bolts tightened up. The satisfaction of having a well-groomed car on the vacation trip is incalculable.

THIS DOG WILL ALWAYS EAT

Ed Evenson of Foxhome Minnesota lost a wallet containing $96.00. A dog was seen by Nick Hennet carrying the wallet. He got the dog to give it to him and returned it to Evenson, who says there is one dog that won't go hungry if he can help it. Nothing was said about the man in the case. That's good. Possibly, we are getting to the place when it isn't "news" to find an honest man.

The increasing realization in Holland of the better results obtained in bread making by using larger quantities of hard Manitoba wheat for mixing with soft South American and European products has caused an increase of imports of Canadian wheat into the Netherlands during the first quarter of 1935.

"The Holy Bible"

MARY STANDS FIRM. Doubtless the family had to practice self-denial in order that Jesus might have time for study. Doubtless his mother

Mary, was often disturbed by his dreamy absorption in ideas. His apparent lack of interest in what they should eat, what they should drink and "wherever" they should be, clothed, though after Joseph's death he took up the burden of family support and carried it nobly until the younger children were old enough to stand alone. It was not merely as the "carpenter's son" but as "the carpenter" that He was known.

There were times when she was troubled about Him; times when she wondered whether He could be quite right in His mind; times, like that awful day of His visit to Nazareth, when her spirit must have been assailed by fear of the forces which were arrayed against Him and a tragic premonition of what these would finally accomplish against her beloved Son. Yet troubled, and even doubting, she did not surrender. Of those who stood firm at the end, a large proportion were women, and she leads them all. Hanging there in agony upon the cross, He gave His last thought to her future safety and comfort.

Now there stood by the cross of Jesus, his mother.

THERE GOES A MAN

The world is poorer because of the passing of "Lawrence of Arabia." An incontinent observer once asked a farmer in a stony section of Ontario, "What do you grow here, rocks?" With a steady keen look which brooded no trifling the man of the soil replied, "And men!" What a man was Lawrence! Physically small, but physically strong. Courageous yet not cruel. Adventurous yet not foolhardy. Cultured but not haughty. Exceptionally capable in many fields yet not proud. Famous and still modest. A man who dared much for civilization and who had the wit and stamina to carry out the designs which he had drawn on the treadmill of life. A bachelor and yet a lover of children—sacrificing his life rather than to endanger one. "How are the mighty fallen!"

Is anyone else in the world glad that you are in it? Then your life is worth living. If not, you can make it so.

GOOD ROADS MAKE MARKETS FOR FARMERS

For some time, stress has been laid on the fact that recovery in this country depends upon the obtaining of new and larger markets.

Public speakers have been known to say: "Give us markets, tear down the tariff walls and we will have better times immediately."

How many farmers realize that traffic would bring a cash market right to their door? There would be no tariff walls to scale. The money from motorists would be "right on the line," where most people prefer to see it, and that line would be on the farm.

A large volume of motor tourists would spend millions of dollars in Alberta each season for their ordinary supplies which are grown on the farm.

They particularly like to have these supplies, whether eggs, vegetables, meats or fruits, in fresh condition, and would naturally prefer to buy them from the merchant who handles these products direct from the farmer. They will buy and buy, if only given the opportunity to do so.

But that opportunity will be lost if the motorist is not given modern hard surfaced roads in order to travel through the country and enjoy the scenic beauty of the landscape. He has enjoyed smooth, comfortable highways south of the U.S. border and will not be inclined to travel far if there is a drastic difference in the north.

To induce the motor tourist to visit this country and return year after year, it is necessary to build modern highways. That is the golden investment for this country, something which will return the cost several times over in increased business for all.

From year to year, the Alberta Motor Association has been stressing the importance of modern highways in this province. Perhaps one of the strongest endorsements of the claims as to the value of the tourist business was given in the last session of the Provincial Legislature by Hon. J. J. MacLellan, Minister of Public Works. He then predicted that the day was rapidly approaching when there would be a modern hard surfaced highway running north and south in the province to help meet the needs of the ever-growing tourist trade.

Now that two elections, one provincial and the other dominion, are in the offing, farmers are urged to require candidates to declare themselves on this question of building modern highways to attract tourist business to this country. Candidates should be "put on the spot." If they are given a mandate at the coming elections, then there will be a definite and decisive action in meeting the road and tourist requirements of this country at a time when action is vital.

Any town that can truthfully advertise itself as a good town in which to live and make a living should loudly proclaim that fact to the world.

RECIPROCITY

The Editor:

Dear Sir:—One of the first great truths we learned at our mother's knee, was that old, old saying, that has come down to us out of the mists of antiquity: "MAN PROPOSES; BUT GOD DISPOSES."

How apt is this saying when applied to some of the proposals that man had made in the face of Nature and Nature's laws, which were made but to be swept aside by these same inexorable laws.

Which brings us to the subject we wish to discuss—namely, closer trade relations with the United States.

For over 80 years, the question of reciprocity in trade has been discussed repeatedly, rejected twice:

First, by the United States in the 60's, and secondly by Canada in 1911. But in spite of that, it is to-day, we believe, most heartily desired by the people of both countries.

To the student of Geography, History, and Economy, the North American continent has a peculiar fascination.

From a geographical view point, it does seem as if the Cosmic Forces and Nature's laws had designed it as a compact UNIT for the habitation of man. While history since its settlement has been, overwhelmingly Anglo-Saxon, points to a complete UNIFICATION under that race.

Then, economically, its UNITY is arbitrarily determined by the geographical and historical associations; so as a UNIT it will remain, in spite of the puny efforts of man and his illogical proposals.

Let us take a map of the North American Continent, and view it in the light of its Geographical, Historical and Economic perspective, and it does not convince you that the "GREAT ARCHITECT" intended it to be at least, a COMMERCIAL UNIT, then you are hopelessly left in imagination.

From the Canadian point of view, closer trade arrangements with the United States is absolutely essential to the future prosperity of our country.

Ever since Confederation, we have been fighting for a market for the riches produce of our farms, factories, fisheries, mines, and timber lands. We have secured the five per cent and seven per cent, looking for a greater market for the increasing products of our country. We have trundled our wheat and other Western produce to the lake head, and thence to Montreal and across to Europe. We have bauld West across the mountains to Vancouver down half

The coming to three small children and Alicia, a mother's helper from an orphan's home, completely changes the course of his life and the plans of his wedding with Gertrude Bayard, an independent selfish society girl are indefinitely postponed.

SLUMBERING GOLD

By Aubrey Boyd

SYNOPSIS—Speed Malone, hardened gambler, and Ed Maitland, son of a seafaring New England family, were partners in the Yukon Gold Rush of '97. They met on the trip north in a crowd that included Frenchy, the fisherman, Lucky Rose, the beautiful girl who took a fancy to Maitland, Fallon, leader of the miners, who resented Rose's interest in Maitland; Brent, old-time prospector; Garnet, who gave Maitland and Speed his outfit when he quit the trail, and Pete and his drunken partner, Owens, who was drowned after a brawl. Pete turned out to be a girl in disguise. Speed killed a man at Skagway—a chest manager of a shell game—and months later was arrested and put in jail for his murder. He got out, but while he was looking for Lefty, who offered to help him, to get back the small he had been carrying for the mounties at Bennett—where Drew and Calhoun were stationed—he was recaptured by his enemy Fallon. But Maitland and Pete rescued him as Fallon was about to lynch him. They made for their camp at Bennett—Pete and Maitland with the horses, by one route, Speed by another with the dogs, led by Rusty, who had come to them in a blizzard. Now go on with the story.

"There was a light-angled person on the ship," Rose said, "who had come North to dip for gold in miners' pockets. I suggested that he try Owens', and so I obtained Dalton's own letter.

"Where is the letter now?" the judge asked, when the hum caused by this strange admission subsided. "I still have it."

Judge Dugas tugged meditatively at the white linen necktie under his chin.

Rose continued carefully. She had resolved to outplay Fallon for the gold. If Owens had been dependable, she might have told him the truth about Fallon and planned the counter-move with him. As it was, she laid her own plans.

She knew—as Owens did not—that while Fallon could threaten the rancher with exposure of the Nevada crime, he wouldn't carry the bluff through without exposing himself as Reeves.

When Speed and his partner arrived at Skagway, she chose them

With Owens gone, Fallon had tried to hold Pete, believing she might know more than he had learned from Owens, and realising that she herself was a very desirable, unclaimed prize. These points Rose conveyed by suggestion rather than direct statement, but they were none the less clear. She described the peculiar turn that had thrown Speed Maitland into a clash of their own with Fallon on the trail, allowing Pete to win free over the pass. The first idea she drew from this was that Pete had taken them into her confidence, but—as she now reminded Wade and the court—it had been interested in the gold at that time, they could have killed Fallon without incurring blame, and with a big saving of trouble to themselves.

On their return to Skagway for their horses and outfit, she had been all the more determined to use them because of their feud with Fallon, and had tried to interest them in the gold. Her warning about the shell-dealer was due to a top she received from Lefty, who had shadowed the man for her. Remembering how the stranger had been killed in Carson, she suspected Fallon of having prompted this ambush.

It was only two weeks ago," she explained, "that I heard of their being held here for the murder of a Siwash on Lake Lebarge last November. I knew they were innocent; knew it among other reasons, because I had Dalton's letter to Owens and a readable proof of who was guilty. There was a joker in the game."

Wade stirred in his chair. The crowd murmured, fearing another objection.

"Part of Dalton's letter read," Rose quoted evenly, "You wouldn't recognize me on sight. I've been living native style, to keep the prospect and so on covered. Wait at the head of Lake Lebarge till the trail's clear, after the freeze-up. I miss connections of the lakes, camp there till spring, and if you don't hear from me before then, float the outfit down the creek the drawing shows."

"That's how I know the accused men are innocent. My motive in explaining this is to turn the law's interest in that piece of gold. It disappeared from the marshal's safe when he left Skagway. A telltale bit of evidence he couldn't leave at large. But a fascinating keepsake he wouldn't destroy. He's trying to shift it now! The luck piece—the proof of that outplay and hang him! Do I win?" Her voice lifted with an indescribable taunting challenge.

Fallon was on his feet—savage, hate-maddened, yet somehow still commanding himself and the mute attention of the court. "You'll hear my answer now!" he said in a hoarse, rasping shout. "If I hang, I don't swing alone. That man—" he pointed. "Speed in the dock—" "was the partner of the stranger who rode the bay. I've figured his trail. He's thought to be drowned off the George E. Starr. He calls himself 'Speed Malone.' Since we're talking of right names, that man is Buck Tracy, sometimes known as Buck Solo—the most notorious desperado and gunman that ever came out of the Northwest!"

"While his hearers stiffened under the shock of the announcement he flung at them, he wheeled on Rose with a movement as swift as lightning. "As for you, you b—!" he yelled.

Only one pair of eyes caught the lightning gleam of the drawn gun. There was a stunning double report. Fallon's gun went out of his hand as if he had thrown it away. With a blankly staring look he sagged in a crumpling fall, dropped by a bullet in the brain from a gun which Speed Malone had jerked from the holster of the belated police guard.

It seemed that his body was still falling when Speed jumped the courtroom floor and leaped for the open window.

The fractional margin of another instant or of one wild shot might have carried him through. Then, with the river before him and a long shore-line of wharves and docked barges, there is no telling what the Mounted Police might have had to write on their flawless man-getting record.

But the odds were too steep. A gun crashed as his boot touched the sill, and Speed fell backward into the courtroom.

ing pools of light and shadow on the wall, and then in wonder at a bright glory of cloud floating across the far azure glimpse that showed through the window opening. It was as if a mirage had crossed his eyes in their last gleam of life.

But something of that same tenacity of will which had held Dalton against the cliff brought him back for a moment, and Maitland heard him say, as he drifted out on that last trail, "Give Rose a hand, Bud—she run a great bluff for ye. Tell her—I was plumb wrong about women. Tell her—how much—I liked the single!"

THE MEN IN WAINWRIGHT

There are men in Wainwright who know that for the most part what they get out of life they will work for. Many letter writers and stockholders leave them alone.

There are men in Wainwright who aren't pushing to get a pull or grovelling in the mud for favors. They want health and work and wages and will give honest value in service for a fair chance at the good things of life.

These men are not rapping their knuckles yelling about what the world owes them, not wishing to have happiness served to them on a golden platter.

There are men in Wainwright, who know that "he who does not mind his own business soon gets to the place where he has no business to mind". These men see the good in others and let someone else weed around in a sour search for human faults.

If the faults of others are forced upon their attention these men find some excuse for the frailties. However, they hold themselves to a strict standard of living.

There are men in Wainwright who are good citizens, working for community welfare and who guard the reputation of their town, its organization and their friends, and who would that of their own more intimate family circle.

If there are men here else list them.

BIGGER AND BETTER SALADS FOR WARM WEATHER

Salads are in order all the year around, but there should be more salads in summer, when the appetite craves and nature provides a wide variety of fresh fruits and vegetables for their making. A vegetable salad may form the main course at luncheon every day, and fruit salad for dinner several times a week forms a refreshing substitute for dessert. The dressing must be carefully chosen to bring out the best flavors in fruits and vegetables.

Fruit Salad Dressing
 ¼ cup vinegar or lemon juice
 ¼ cup salad oil or melted butter
 Two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk

1 egg yolk (unbeaten)
 1 teaspoon salt
 Few grains cayenne
 1 teaspoon dry mustard
 ½ cup tart red jelly

Place ingredients (except jelly) in mixing bowl. Beat with rotary egg beater until mixture thickens. If thicker consistency is desired, place in refrigerator to chill before serving. Just before serving add one-half cup tart red jelly such as currant or cranberry. Mix well, using a silver fork. Makes 1½ cups. This is delicious with any fruit mixture.

Mustard Salad Dressing
 ¼ cup sweetened condensed milk
 ¼ cup tomato catsup
 ¼ cup prepared mustard

Thoroughly blend sweetened condensed milk, tomato catsup and prepared mustard. Chill. Serve on lettuce or vegetable salad. Makes ¾ cup.

STRETCH YOUR STRAWBERRIES

When the first luscious strawberries appear, how can we afford to buy enough to give our eager family a generous serving? The answer is—we can't—unless we put on our thinking cap and find a way to make a quart of berries go a long way—to make a quart of berries serve six people.

Strawberry Delight
 1 quart fresh strawberries, hulled
 1 cup sugar
 2 cups water
 1½ teaspoon salt
 One-third cup quick-cooking tapioca
 1 cup strawberry juice and water
 ½ cup cream, whipped
 Crush strawberries slightly, add sugar, and let stand 30 minutes or longer. Place water in top of double boiler and bring to a boil over direct heat. Add salt to quick-cooking tapioca, add gradually to water and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly. Place immediately over rapidly boiling water and cook five minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool—mixture clears and thickens as it cools. Drain strawberries; add water to make 1 cup. When tapioca mixture is slightly cool, add strawberry juice. Pour ½ of this mixture into parfait glasses; chill. When remaining tapioca mixture is cold, fold in cream; pile lightly in glasses. Just before serving, top with crushed strawberries. Serves six.

SPECIAL OCCASION CAKE

For your next "special occasion"—a company dinner, a birthday feast, a festive summer luncheon—chocolate ice box cake! It is so simple, so easy to make, yet when it graces the table it looks positively chef-like. This dessert is an ideal summer dainty—spongy light and icy cold as you bring it from the refrigerator to the table.

Chocolate Ice Box Cake
 4 squares unsweetened chocolate
 ½ cup sugar
 Dash of salt
 ¼ cup hot water
 4 egg yolks
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
 1 cup cream, whipped
 2 dozen lady fingers

Melt chocolate in top of double-boiler. Add sugar, salt, and water, stirring until sugar is dissolved and mixture is blended. Remove from boiling water; add egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Place over boiling water and cook 2 minutes or until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from boiling water; add vanilla and fold into egg whites. Chill. Fold in whipped cream. Line bottom and sides of mold with lady fingers. Turn chocolate mixture into mold and place remaining lady fingers on top. Chill 12 to 24 hours in refrigerator. If desired, add 1 cup finely cut walnut meats to chocolate mixture before turning into mold. Unmold. Serves eight.

MILK DESSERTS GIVE CHILDREN RUSH HOUR LUNCH THAT'S WHOLE

SOME ARE APPEALING

How to get enough nourishment into the child in the few minutes he is home from school for luncheon is a real problem. The meal must be satisfying without being a tax on the digestion. And it must be easy to eat quickly. A milk dessert fills all these requirements and gives the needed nourishment in a most wholesome form. Here are some easy to make, inexpensive desserts of this sort, warranted to appeal to the youthful taste.

Orange Meringue Custard
 1 and one-third (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
 3 oranges
 3 eggs
 3 tablespoons granulated sugar

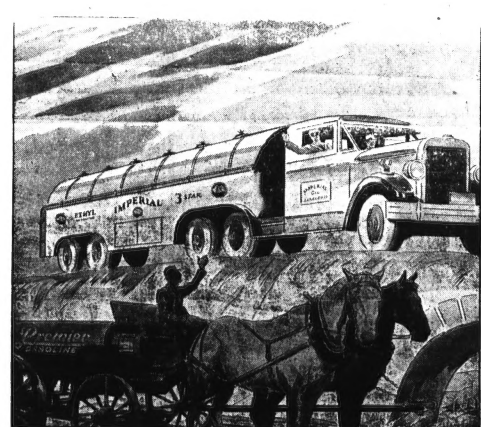

Blend sweetened condensed milk with diced pulp and juice of oranges. Add well-beaten egg yolks. Pour into buttered baking dish. Cover top with meringue made from stiffly beaten egg whites and sugar. Bake 15 minutes, or until meringue is brown, in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees F.). Serves six.

Bakelite Fudding

1 and one-third (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
 Juice of one lemon.
 ¼ cups graham cracker crumbs
 2 eggs

Blend together sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice and well-beaten egg. Stir until thick. Add graham cracker crumbs. Place in sherbet glasses. May be garnished with whipped cream and nut meats. Serves six.

THE ALBERTA PACIFIC GRAIN COMPANY LIMITED

A LITTLE COMPANY GROWN BIG

IMPERIAL OIL was a little Company in 1880. There was then only a handful of employees. A dozen or so products were the Company's stock in trade.

Today nearly 18,000 Canadian men and women are engaged in making and selling 714 different Imperial Oil Products. So, counting their families, there are about 90,000 people directly dependent for livelihood on this Company and its operations. 90,000 is a lot of Canadians.

Imperial Oil's growth depended upon more than growth in population and demand. Fair dealing, honest value and the ability to meet new needs with new products and new services all played their part. Of course, a loyal, capable staff was indispensable. Such a staff was built up by fair and considerate treatment. Good wages, sickness and death benefits, retirement pensions, group insurance, industrial councils—these are some of the measures by which the Company has recognized its responsibility to the men and women in its employ.

These men and women have recognized in turn their responsibility to the Company. By loyal, whole-hearted service they have helped it to make better products at lower cost and thus become "a big company."

The Divorce Court MURDER

by Milton Propper

The trouble started in Mr. Dawson's private law office.

Six people were discussing the case of Rowland vs. Rowland and four of those people were angry.

Mrs. Rowland and her lawyer objected to the introduction of new evidence and a new witness.

The battle raged until Mr. Dawson, Divorce Court Master, ordered the new witness to be brought in.

She was in the next room, but they could not bring her in.

She was dead.

Then started a sensational investigation which involved one of Philadelphia's most renowned families.

It led to scandal, intrigue, a scold's affair in a road house... and, finally, to a startling solution.

The Divorce Court Murder is a thrilling mystery story by a prolific young American author, Milton Propper. It is a story packed full of action from beginning to end with startling surprises for the reader at every turn.

Milton Propper is one of America's foremost writers of mystery thrillers. Other popular stories he has written are: The Student Fraternity Murder, The Strange Disappearance of Mary Young, The Bachelor Murder, The Family Burial Murders, The Tiger T-Neck Murder, etc., etc., etc.

The Divorce Court Murder will start in this newspaper next week. It is one of Milton Propper's best stories. We urge our readers not to miss a single installment.

on sight as the kind of men she needed, and made them a blind proposition to do a trailing job for her persisting in the intention after they refused.

Her account of what followed explained several questions that had puzzled them. She ascribed Owens' death to fear. The drunken rancher had crumpled under Fallon's threat, told everything he knew, and then between fear of judgment and more drink to drown his fear, had drowned himself.

vengeance where it belongs, on a man who has taken human life, the man who shot the U.S. Marshal in the train hold-up. I mean Fallon. My motive is to see him ride into his own downfall and laugh in his face!"

Her eyes flashed at Fallon's clenched hand. "If it takes proof to open," the low, vibrant tone of the words seemed to fill the room—"in his hand. The lucky clover leaf nugget. He was afraid of Malone's

For an instant the court stood dazed in the swirling smoke.

The bar of the prisoner's dock broke in splinters; Maitland was struggling in the hold of two police-guardians to reach his partner.

Yet even in that frozen moment the wheel of Justice turned. Judge Dugas looked down on the fallen outlaw with a curious stillness, and then at Wade, whose response, though no one heard it, was translated to the police-guardians.

"Release the prisoner."

Half-lifting Speed out of a widening pool of blood, Maitland had a blurred awareness of Pete on his other side. The outlaw leaned against his supporting arms, deeply breathing the cool breeze from snowy peaks that came through the open window.

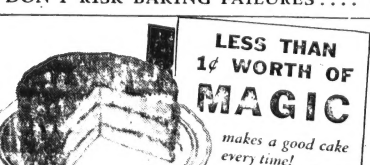

"A doctor," Maitland tried to say, but his heart strangled the words in his throat, and tears rained on his partner's reddened shirt. Speed looked up at him mistily and shook his head. "I don't ask for no better run of luck than this. Bud. Always figured I'd fall in some mountain pass alone and here."

He paused at something beyond his power to say. "We both got what we looked for and more only not where we were looking."

His eyes rested on the sun-burned gold of Pete's hair and strayed back to his partner with a gleam of his old time ruminating smile. "Gold is where you find it, like Steiner said."

The strength seemed to ebb from him; he looked dully at the waver-

the length of the Pacific through the Panama Canal, and across the Atlantic to Britain. We have pulled it over 1000 miles of muskies, Churchill, through the frozen Hudson Straits, and across the North Atlantic to the half-bankrupt shores of continental Europe. We have peddled it to the Orient, and spent millions in propaganda to cultivate a market among a people who do not now, and never will use wheat. In short, we have spent vast sums in trying to open up markets all over the known world. All that, and more; but with what success?

The hundreds of millions of dollars worth of farm produce, stored in our elevators and on our farms, which cannot sell at a profit, tell the story; and are a monument to the political blunders of our legislators, and the narrow-mindedness of Eastern Canada, as well as an ever-present reminder of the tragedy of the conditions these blunders have brought about.

The Canadian people could be excused these wild and costly efforts to secure foreign markets, were it not for the fact that right by our side—our next door neighbor—is the wealthiest nation in the world, with 150 millions people, our own flesh and blood, the great majority of whom are anxious to do business with us.

Within the United States, and within a comparative short distance of our borders, are the great cities of New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, St. Paul, Frisco, Philadelphia, Minneapolis, Detroit and many others as large or nearly so, and far surpassing in wealth cities of a like size in Europe or elsewhere.

The United States is our natural market. Nature itself has determined that; and the common sense of the people of both countries demands that the closest possible trade agreement be arranged at once.

A Reciprocity Pact between the two countries would have been twenty-five years ago, had it not been for the antagonism of Eastern interests, particularly in Ontario and Quebec. These interests fought it determinedly, knowing that once Reciprocity went into effect, Western Canada would no longer be their own particular field of exploitation.

But there condition must no longer be allowed to prevail. World conditions are changing and are bringing the Anglo-Saxon race together as never before. Washington and London are closer today than they ever have been. Shoulder to shoulder they stand, and while they remain so, nothing else matters.

It is unreasonable that the manufacturing interests in Eastern Canada be permitted to retard the future prosperity of 140 million Americans and Canadians, and halt the progress of the wonderful civilization and unification of a race that is being perfected on this continent.

The Canadian people will soon have in their hands the means to remedy the situation. A general election will be held this year; and in their wrath they will hurl from power at Ottawa the Government that has trampled the people and retarded the progress of the country for the last five years.

With a liberal government in power at Ottawa, and the Roosevelt administration at Washington, it requires but little imagination to picture what wonderful prospects the future holds for both countries. With Canada's vast natural resources, and the United States teeming millions the future of this country may far transcend our wildest dreams.

Uncle Sam holds out his hand; let us grasp it, let them at the right hand and left of the dear old Motherland we will face the world.

PURGATORY

Editor, Wainwright Star,
Dear Sir—We submit herewith following short study on what some of your readers believe to be a bible doctrine because they have been told so by their teachers, but our teacher has told us many things which were not truth and it is surely TRUTH we all want and each of us must decide for himself what he considers to be the truth after getting all of the Bible information possible on the subject under consideration. The general understanding of this scripture is clearly wrong, even from the orthodox standpoint, for it is plainly shown from a study of the following scriptures that neither of the two thieves died on the same day. Jesus therefore one of them could not have been in paradise with Jesus on that day (Matt. xii. 40; xvi. 28-31; 57, 62, 63, verse 62 is wrongly punctuated the first comma should be after the word "followed". Mark xv. 42 44; 1-2; John 11: 19, 30, 31, 32, 33. Jesus' trial, crucifixion and death took place on Thursday which according to Jewish law (or God's law) began at sunset on our Wednesday; both of the thieves were still alive on the beginning of the preparation day (Friday) and there is no record as to when they

Many religious teachers teach the people that those who died in sin are now in "purgatory" or torment. What is meant by "purgatory"? and who are there? "Purgatory" means to "cleanse" or "make pure"; and the supposed "purgatory" is presumed to be a place for the cleansing of men from their sins, so that when a sinner dies he might be cleansed after being dead. The clergy claim that this may be done while he is dead. They also teach that the prayers of priests can be said for one in "purgatory" and thereby his term of punishment shortened and his release be much earlier. Many good people have paid large sums of money to priests to pray for their dead ones upon the theory that they could get them out of "purgatory". It is therefore seen that the "purgatory" teaching has been used as a means of obtaining revenue.

The doctrine of sinners suffering in "purgatory" is wholly false and has brought a great reproach upon the name of Jehovah God. It would be a terrible thing if the Almighty God would commit men to "purgatory" and then permit other men to pray for them to get them out, and to receive money consideration for so doing. As the Bible plainly teaches those who have died are entirely out of existence and unconscious, not knowing anything. If we believe the Bible, then we must certainly know that there is no person in "purgatory", and that there is no such place in existence. There is not one scripture in the Bible to support the "purgatory" theory. The false doctrine of "purgatory" began to be taught some 1600 years ago, and since that time it has continued to be preached and money collected for prayers upon the pretext of getting men out of "purgatory". The people have paid their money and got nothing in return. This is another false doctrine of Satan based upon his original lie, his purpose being to deceive the people and cause them to suffer both mentally and materially. Because this doctrine has been taught so many centuries doubtless many priests verily believe it to be true; but that does not make it true. Ask them to show you one text in the Bible to the effect that the dead are conscious in "purgatory", and they will not be able to do so.

Some will cite the case of the thief that was crucified the day that Jesus died. The thief said to Jesus: "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." Jesus replied: "I say unto thee today (that is, now), shalt thou be with me in paradise." The word "paradise" means a garden or beautiful condition of the earth, and has no reference to a place of cleansing. Jesus did not go to "purgatory" or any other place that day, because He was dead and in the grave for three days. After His resurrection He ascended to heaven. "Paradise" has reference to the beautified earth which will be made so by Jesus during the time of His kingdom. The thief died and went into the grave, and is there yet. The meaning of Jesus' words, therefore, is this: That because the thief exercised faith in Jesus he would be brought forth during the reign of Christ and have an opportunity to live on the beautified earth.

Furthermore, no one has authority to say prayers for forgiveness of sins of those who have died. Only God can forgive sins, and prayers for the dead are not heard by Jehovah. No man's prayers are heard until that person believes on God and Christ and then consecrates himself to do the will of God. To claim that men are suffering in "purgatory" and can be released by the prayers of others is not only a false doctrine, but a defamation of God's name. The dead are in the tomb awaiting to be awakened out of death. Jesus said: Marvel not: the hour is coming in which all that are in their graves shall hear His voice and come forth: they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life;

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

It has been said of old, "In time of peace prepare for war". The day has come when we should change this time-honored slogan to read, "In time of peace prepare not for war but against war."

War has its roots in the mistakes made in time of peace. What we are failing to do or minding today may cause numberless men to suffer the indescribable horrors of modern warfare and bring unpeakable anguish to the hearts of millions of innocent women and children.

This is a solemn and horrific thought which should move the conscience and awaken the efforts of all who are touched by human woes. The prevention of war is the supreme task of the hour and the Wainwright's Greatest Need are those who are devising and seeking to establish measures which make for peace. On the other hand, those who are blocking the way are whether they know it or not, the arch enemies of the human race. To which crowd do you belong?
